Residential Service Guidelines

As a result of participating in this segment of training, you will be able to:

1. Identify the Residential Service Guidelines
2. Defend the value of each of the six Residential Service Guidelines
3. Relate the importance of the Residential Service Guidelines to their lives (as staff) and to the lives of those we support
4. Create a dramatization of the qualities of a meaningful life, using a variety of mediums
5. Balance health and safety versus power and choice in problem solving scenarios

Residential Service Guidelines

C

Providing support in order that they may confidently and successfully accomplish the things they would like to do, and the things that they need to do

H & S

Providing guidance to encourage healthy choices, develop personal health skills and advocating for their health and safety in order that they may enjoy the fullness of life

I

Assisting and positioning to provide opportunities to become a part of their community, become exposed to a wide variety of people, utilize resources, participate in activities and develop interests that they may experience a vibrant life

R

Elevating quality of life by supporting existing family relationships and friendships, encouraging the development of new personal relationships, while modeling a supportive, healthy, professional relationship

P & C

Empowering through allowing and advocating for the right to have power, control and choice regarding personal affairs, and promoting personal fulfillment through respecting the need to be in charge of their daily and lifetime destiny

S

Providing interactions that promote a positive sense of self and promoting opportunities where they will be valued, appreciated, and respected by others

My Notes

Qualities of a Meaningful Life

8:00 to Noon	Noon to 4:00	4:00 to 8:00	8:00 to Midnight

My notes