

Safe Home

The Goldsen Institute - University of Washington

The University of Washington Goldsen Institute's AgePRIDE Center is currently recruiting skilled nursing facilities to participate in our Safe Home training.

What is Safe Home?

Safe Home is the first evidence-based training program to address the needs of LGBTQ+, sexual and gender diverse minorities, and racial and ethnic minorities in long-term care communities. Our skill-based training courses provide staff with the tools they need to be able to meet the mandate of providing person centered care in long term care facilities. Our courses ensure staff develop specific and transferable skills that will result in more inclusive care for health disparate, underserved populations.

Safe Home Offers:

- Technical assistance on best practices for supporting LGBTQ+ older adults
- Ongoing training centered around the needs of your long-term care community
- Access to Goldsen Institute research on vulnerable populations
- Resources, guides, and reports on issues related to LGBTQ+ aging

What are the benefits?

- Improve cultural inclusivity
- Address LGBTQ+ and racial and ethnic needs
- Develop effective communication strategies
- Mitigate negative stereotypes and unconscious bias
- Gain practical skills to provide affirming services
- Create safe and welcoming environments
- Connect with local LGBTQ+ community resources

Who can participate?

The Safe Home training program is open to Washington State Long- Term Care Workers.

How much does it cost?

The Safe Home training program is offered at no-cost to Skilled Nursing Facilities in Washington State. CEUs and Certificate of Completion can be provided. There is a nominal training fee for other Long-Term Care Providers.
