Creating a Meaningful Day And Boundaries and Limit Settings

This training day focuses on empowering the people who themselves empower the individuals that we serve.

Creating a Meaningful Day will focus on strategies consistent with positive behavior support to create a truly habilitative environment while also attending to personal empowerment and self-care for the staff providing support.

The second part of the day focuses on communication styles that promote personal power for both staff and the individuals they serve.

Boundaries and Limit Setting will focus on improving the conditions in which communication takes place to improve messages and message intent to assertively set limits when faced with persistent or aggressive communication. The attendee will have an opportunity to examine communication styles and how they are perceived by others.
